Since 1980, the American Agricultural Law Association has served as the premier association for agricultural law and policy professionals, providing an independent, non-partisan forum for dissemination of agricultural law information and the discussion of agricultural, natural resources, and food policy.

The AALA appreciates the dedication and professionalism of its speakers at its annual education symposium each year and the time invested for each presentation. As a result, the AALA offers significant discounts on registration for speakers who attend the symposium to take advantage of the excellent continuing legal education provided (12 – 14 credits). We always encourage our speakers to consider becoming members of the AALA, and this year we are offering a discounted membership for first-time members of the association. AALA submits CLE applications for accreditation and attendance for speakers unless they choose category D.
