1:00 – 2:00 pm: Session #8: Ethics - Developing Diverse Talent in Agricultural Law and Policy: Be Part of the Solution

Moderator: Angie Krieger, Sustainable Environmental Consultants, Clive, IA

As ag lawyers, we find ourselves mentoring or otherwise supervising non-lawyers.....if we are using these non-lawyers in our practices or businesses, what duties do we have with respect to the non-lawyers? Rule 5.3 of the Model Rule of Professional Conduct provides guidance, which includes not only the appropriate amount of instruction needed regarding ethical aspects of the employment but also the level of responsibility for the non-lawyers work product. More broadly, however, the session will discuss the need for more ag lawyers to be willing to engage in these non-lawyer supervisory roles as guided by Rule 5.3., and to challenge ourselves to support the next generation of ag lawyers and policy leaders.

Law students have myriad opportunities for traditional internships and clerkships, but do we provide enough opportunities to learn about key issues in modern agriculture (especially animal agriculture)? NALC does a great job providing information to students who know they are interested in ag, but what about those who don't know where to look? Or those who look for information and only see one side of the issues (i.e. <https://thebrooksinstitute.org/> or https://law.lclark.edu/centers/animal_law_studies/)?

We need to challenge ourselves to start thinking outside the box about how we support development of the next generation of ag law and ag policy leaders. This starts with broadening our search beyond traditional sources of ag law students and then giving those we find a great experience, all while keeping in mind the MRPC.

Session 8

2:05 – 3:05 pm: Session #9: Concurrent Breakouts

Sackett v EPA - Future of Clean Water Act

Speakers: Charles Yates, Pacific Legal Foundation, Sacramento, CA
Tim Bishop, Mayer Brown, Chicago, IL
Jonathan Adler, Case Western Reserve University School of Law, Cleveland, OH
James May, Widener University Delaware Law School, Chester, PA

This session, headlined by the Sackett litigation team, will address possible outcomes in Sackett v EPA (drawing on oral argument and court briefings) and include a robust discussion on the impact of the case as it relates to the future of the Clean Water Act. Additionally, the panel of litigators and legal scholars will use Sackett as a vehicle to examine the 50-year legacy of the Clean Water Act – with particular emphasis on the act’s impact on American agriculture.

Session 9A

Representing Farmers in USDA's National Appeals Division (NAD)

Speakers: Frank “Max” Woods, Director, National Appeals Division, Alexandria, VA
Kyla Kaplan, Olsson Frank Weeda Terman Matz PC, Washington, DC
Robert Slaughter, Slaughter & Lupton Law, PLLC, Edenton, NC

This session will discuss representing farmers who appeal adverse USDA decisions to NAD. The session will provide important background information on how a farmer could end up appealing adverse USDA decisions to NAD; address key statutes, regulations, NAD decisions, and federal court decisions; and give practice pointers.

Session 9B Larson

PFAS - A Huge Liability Come Home to Roost

Speakers: Joe Lyon, The Lyon Firm, Cincinnati, OH
Thomas Redick, Global Environmental Ethics Counsel LLC, Spring Lake, MI
David Jefferson Dye, New Orleans, LA

This session will describe the unfortunate history of PFAS (a catch-all for many fluoridated compounds used for waterproofing-etc.), which are increasingly being found in the environment, posing a serious challenge for many farmers. In the near future, entire dairy herds could be sent to Superfund sites in many states, as the first dairies in New Mexico, Michigan and New Hampshire to be afflicted with PFAS contamination point toward the future. Because plants, particularly corn, are known to take up PFAS from soil, recalls of food loom ahead. Regulators are trying to set safe levels for compounds that have never been subject to adequate testing. While known to be toxic since the 1980s, they not yet listed as hazardous under Superfund (Congress may finally fix this omission). Major agricultural groups have been meeting with the EPA and FDA and hoping to resolve how best to handle this impending crisis.

Session 9C

100th Anniversary Capper Volstead Act: Recent Developments

Speakers: Jack Huerter, Dorsey & Whitney, Minneapolis, MN
Mike Traxinger, Agtegra Cooperative, Houghton, South Dakota

The current environment of heightened antitrust scrutiny of the agriculture industry brings added emphasis to the need for the Capper-Volstead Act limited antitrust exemption. This exemption enables members of agricultural cooperatives to collaborate and set prices for the products marketed through the cooperative without running afoul of the Sherman Act. Courts have strictly construed the statute’s elements, however, yielding harsh results for cooperatives failing to qualify for the exemption. This session will present the Capper Volstead Act, its elements, the case law interpreting those elements, and recent cases that cooperatives should be aware in assessing their antitrust exposure.

3:15 – 4:15 pm: Session #10: Concurrent Breakouts

Solutions for Heirs Property Owners

Speaker: Jesse Richardson, West Virginia University of Law, Morgantown, WV
Amber Miller, Crenshaw, Dupree & Milam, L.L.P., Lubbock, TX
Laura Vaught, Kious Rodgers Barger Holder & King, PLLC, Murfreesboro, TN

Heirs property is a growing problem across the United States. The 2018 Farm Bill allows farm operators to obtain an FSA farm number, but the rules don't apply to every heirs property situation, and the clouded title issues still remain. In addition, heirs property owners still lack access to credit and other federal and state programs and services. This session will briefly review the causes and effects of heirs property, then focus on how private practitioners or public interest attorneys can best address and minimize the negative impacts of heirs property. Policy solutions will be discussed.

Lions, Tigers, Cows... Oh My! - Emerging Issues in Animal Law

Speakers: Jake Parker, North Carolina Farm Bureau, Raleigh, NC
Caroline Lodbell, Western Resources Legal Center, Portland, OR Mike Dye, Law Office of Michael B. Dye, Salem, OR

This session will discuss the latest developments in Animal Law and the implications those developments may have on animal agriculture. The session will discuss various subject matter areas, including animal welfare, animal rights, and animal personhood, and explore the intriguing intersection between criminal and animal law. This session is intended to complement the later Session 11C.

Session 10B

Rural - Urban Reintegration and Food Resiliency

Speakers: Jessica Guarino, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, Urbana, IL
Malory Ma Roddy, ArentFox Schiff LLP, Chicago, IL
Jonathan Coppess, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, Urbana, IL

Social and environmental challenges require the U.S. food system to redevelop production and distribution channels to achieve greater resiliency and alignment with evolving consumer perspectives. One means is re-integration of local and regional producers into the food supply. This session will explore the legal, economic, and equity issues involved in rerouting food system networks to both draw food production to the urban environment and to pull the urban population to the locus of food production. The goal is to provide practitioners and policy professionals tools to facilitate food system re-integration with a focus on the urban edge.

Perspectives on the Future of PACA: Recent Cases and Opportunities for Modernization

Speakers: Karen Carr, ArentFox Schiff LLP, Washington, DC
Ben Kahrl, Produce Pay Inc., Los Angeles, CA
Rebeckah Adcock, International Fresh Produce Association, Washington DC
Bruce Summers, US Department of Agriculture, Washington, DC

The Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) was enacted during the Great Depression to promote fair trade in the fresh fruit and vegetable industry and has slowly evolved through court decisions and legislative and regulatory updates. This session will discuss developments in the recent case law and provide insights from USDA and private practitioners representing produce industry and AgTech perspectives. This session will also discuss regulatory proposals to modernize PACA to account for emerging technologies.

The Digitalization of Grain Contracts and Trading

*Speakers: Todd Janzen, Janzen Schroeder Agricultural Law LLC, Indianapolis, IN
J. Michael Bowman, Zen Noh Grain Corporation, Covington, LA
Brittany Batz, Demeter Logistics, Louisville, KY
Adam Lazarov, Indigo Ag, Memphis, TN*

This session will cover the efforts made to transform grain trading from using paper contracts to moving to online digital platforms. The discussion will start at the farm level and explain how farmers are embracing new platforms that allow grain contracting online. The next portion will discuss the Barge Digital project that is moving barge trading to NGFA's online platform. Finally, the panel will discuss international shipping of grain and how it is revolutionized by digital grain trading.

Prop 12, Question 3, and Beyond: Recent State Legislation Targeting Animal Raising Practices

*Speakers: John Dillard, OFW Law, Washington, DC
Brianna Schroeder, Janzen Schroeder Agricultural Law LLC, Indianapolis, IN Chelsea Good, Livestock Marketing Association, Overland Park, KS*

In 2018, California's voters approved Proposition 12, a ballot initiative mandating minimum animal raising standards for animals that produce pork, veal, and eggs for the California market, regardless of where the animals are raised. Massachusetts voters approved a similar ballot initiative, Question 3, in 2016. In addition, several state bills that would significantly restrict common animal raising practices are under consideration. This session will provide an update on the implementation of Prop 12 and Question 3, review recent court challenges to the legislation and the precarious state of the Dormant Commerce Clause doctrine, and review similar legislative proposals under consideration. This session is intended to complement the earlier Session 10B.

Grow North: Understanding the Landscape to Help Your Clients Build Their Agribusinesses in Canada

Speaker: Julia Schatz, Bennett Jones LLP, Toronto, ON Lorelei Graham, Bennett Jones LLP, Toronto, ON Kristos Iatridis, Bennett Jones LLP, Calgary, AB

This session will provide an overview of considerations for agribusiness and food companies doing business in Canada, including corporate and tax structures, regulatory schemes that govern those businesses and protecting those businesses' assets. It will be a primer to understanding the key requirements for conducting agribusiness in Canada.

Right to Farm: The North Carolina Experience Updated

Speakers: Jake Parker, North Carolina Farm Bureau, Raleigh, NC

Tiffany Lashmet, Texas A&M Department of Agricultural Economics, Amarillo, TX

Nate Huff, K&L Gates, Morrisville, NC

This session will provide an update on North Carolina's farm nuisance litigation/right-to-farm saga with an emphasis on state court litigation challenging recent amendments to the State's right-to-farm statute under the North Carolina Constitution. Huff and Parker, who represent separate but cooperating defendants in the litigation, will discuss the litigation and its path through the trial court and appellate levels. Lashmet will review how other state legislatures are responding to North Carolina's experience and forecast possible developments in nuisance law and right-to-farm defenses in general.

Hunting Leases and Landowner Liability: Providing Protection and Opportunity for Clients

Speakers: Nathaniel Gilbert, The Law Office of Nathaniel Gilbert, LLC, San Antonio, TX

TBD

Drafting hunting leases to provide interest protection and land stewardship for landowners and recreational opportunity for outfitters and hunters. By using creative drafting solutions and hunting industry specific language, attorneys can help farmers and ranchers avoid the issues common to leasing their property for hunting. Understanding the intersection of custom-tailored liability waivers and statutory protection in protecting the interests of farmers and ranchers who lease their property for hunting. Legislation limiting personal liability of landowners only goes so far, and lawyers helping to shield their clients from liability must understand liability waiver requirements and common law approaches.

The Local: Partnerships With Artisanal Alcohol Producers and Sellers and Their Agricultural Suppliers

Speakers: John Szymankiewicz, Beer Law Center, Raleigh, NC
TBD

Agriculture Law attorneys have seen a seismic shift in the value proposition of niche commodity crops. As artisanal, "local", and heritage/heirloom products command a premium and alcohol producers and sellers look to capitalize on the impact of the business on the local level, understanding the needs of the different groups is critical to capitalizing on market opportunities. This session will dive into the needs of alcohol producers and sellers and how agricultural suppliers can create a value position just by being themselves. We'll also touch on critical legal aspects of the quasi-partnerships that develop and how/when craft and art can become argument and litigation.

Preservation and Utilizing Groundwater Resources: Practical Guide & Overview of Various State Regulations & Programs to Preserve Water Rights for Future Long-Term Use

Speakers: Gage Hart Zobell, Dorsey & Whitney, Salt Lake City, UT
Isaac Potter, AgReserves Inc., Salt Lake City

This session will provide an overview of current groundwater resources in agriculturally rich areas (i.e., Central Valley, Ogallala Aquifer, Mid-West, Montana, Arizona) and the state regulatory regimes controlling groundwater usage (i.e., right of capture, prior appropriation, modified riparian permit, etc.). This session will then focus on current, and proposed, statewide regulations and initiatives that allowed agricultural users greater flexibility with groundwater resources while promoting efficiency and reduction in groundwater usage. Among these programs are the recharge systems in Nevada and Arizona, in-stream flow leasing in Montana, water management areas in Kansas, and others.

Title Issues in Ag Real Estate: Beyond the Basics

Speaker: Jen Modjeska, First American Title Insurance Company, Seattle, WA
Jonathan Buss, First American Title Insurance Company, Salt Lake City, UT
Kari Larson, K&L Gates LLP, Seattle, WA

This session will start with an overview of title insurance coverages, including recent changes to the ALTA form policy jackets, then explore more advanced ag title topics through the different perspectives of (i) the attorney representing the buyer, seller, or lender, and (ii) the title insurer. The presenters (consisting of an agribusiness attorney and underwriting counsel for a title insurer) will delve into more advanced topics that arise in agribusiness real estate transactions, including: (a) insuring appurtenant easements; (b) railroad access issues; (c) oil, gas, and mineral leases and reservations; and (d) leasehold title insurance.

The Future of Food: Issues Related to FDA's Role in Food Regulation

Speakers: Amy Costello – Director, Food Safety, Casey's General Stores, Ankeny, IA
Marnie Jensen – Partner, Husch Blackwell, Omaha, NE
Kelly Nuckolls – Assistant Director and Visiting Assistant Professor of Law for the LL.M. Program in Agricultural and Food Law, Fayetteville, AR

Moderator: Jennifer Zwagerman, Director of the Drake Agricultural Law Center (Des Moines, IA)

This panel is a look at the current topics and issues making FDA a key focus in food regulation and supply at the moment – and not for positive reasons. These include issues tied to food inspections and assuring standards are met, communication and reporting concerns both within the agency and with regulatory partners, the role of standards of identity in the modern food system, and consumer understanding of FDA's role when it comes to safety and nutrition policy.

These FDA-related issues impact all within food and agriculture and it is important to understand what these and other potential regulatory changes, consumer demands, and litigation impacts may mean. Our panel will highlight key issues, discuss the legal and regulatory ramifications, and look into the crystal ball as to what may happen next.

State Trends in Agricultural Labor Legislation

Speakers: Austin Vincent, Colorado Farm Bureau, Centennial, CO
TBD

Throughout the country, more State legislatures are discussing and passing bills concerning agricultural labor laws. While California has had ag labor laws and regulations in place for decades, now states like Colorado, New York, Oregon, and Washington state are expanding their own agriculture labor laws and regulations. This session will discuss the trending laws and regulations that are being discussed and enacted across the nation, which includes overtime, unionization, hand-weeding regulations, heat illness regulations, access to employees, and others. It is a primer for ag policy and agricultural attorneys who will need this information for clients who have employees and what they need to do to comply with these laws.

Economic and Legal Considerations With Carbon Markets

Speakers: Paul Goeringer, University of Maryland, College Park, MD

Tiffany Lashmet, Texas A&M Department of Agricultural Economics, Amarillo, TX

Shannon Ferrell, Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, OK

Agricultural operators across the country are being presented with new opportunities related to carbon sequestration. Because these markets are new and developing, there are several economic and legal considerations that producers need to consider. This session will discuss the various legal questions and economic considerations that Extension faculty have been receiving and addressing. Topics to be discussed will be an overview of carbon markets, economic considerations when adopting carbon sequestration practices on-farm or rangeland, legal considerations of which agricultural operators need to be aware, and key challenges for market development.

Surviving & Thriving Under ESG: Regulatory Update and Best Practices Related to the Sustainability Measures Related to the "Environmental" Aspects of ESG / Promote Brand Enhancement & Avoid Brandwashing: Best Practices for Sustainability Claims

Speakers: Gage Hart Zobell, Dorsey & Whitney LLP, Salt Lake City, UT

Megan Houdeshel, Dorsey & Whitney LLP, Salt Lake City, UT

Steven Poplawski, Bryan Cave Leighton Paisner LLP, St. Louis, MO

Nora Faris, Bryan Cave Leighton Paisner LLP, St. Louis, MO

In nearly every ag-dependent industry, sustainability claims are front and center, and while marketers love to make these claims, class action plaintiffs love to break them. This session addresses the opportunities and challenges associated with sustainability and Environmental Social Governance ("ESG") claims and discusses how food & ag companies can quantify ESG metrics to maximize their ESG credentials while minimizing litigation risk. This session will also introduce the background and regulatory framework upon which ESG is based, review the recent Securities & Exchange Commission rulemaking on ESG and implementation of voluntary disclosures, and discuss market opportunities to capitalize on ESG, including: (i) carbon farming contracts; (ii) carbon sequestration; and (iii) water conservation measures.

AALA will submit sessions deemed eligible for continuing legal education (CLE) credits to symposium registrants' states.

CLE credits are granted based on individual attendance records and state CLE rules. Note that approvals will vary because each state has different CLE requirements and rules. For example, not every state calculates CLE credits based on the clock hour. Not every state will grant CLE credits for each session submitted by AALA. In all events, AALA is committed to providing top-quality, relevant CLE that will be approved for most states.
